Educational Institutions require special attention. College security can be much different than security sites at a warehouse, distribution plant or hospital. Here are some of the issues that were indentifying by Diamond Security when working with security personal on a college campus:

Parking: Parking lots are often filled with cars at college campuses. The problem is there is a lack of passes for these vehicles. Crowded parking lots often promote students to park improperly on grass or easement periphery often causing congestion that may hinder emergency vehicles.

Classrooms: Classroom buildings are often left open until late night when unoccupied, and anyone could enter through the emergency doors. This leads to unattended equipment and furnishings.

Lighting: Are all lights functioning? Unlit and dark areas are a major concern. Not only is it an unsafe area to walk, it also promotes problems such as crime and a meeting place for suspicious groups.
